Title:	Asia-Pacific International Molecular Biology Network
Reference code:	AIMBN
Date:	1997- (creation)
Physical description:	1 folder of paper material.

Administrative history / Biographical sketch

The European Molecular Biology Organization (EMBO) was founded in 1964 by a group of leading European scientists to strengthen research in molecular biology and foster collaboration across Europe. Its establishment was closely linked to the creation of the European Molecular Biology Conference (EMBC, 1969), which provided intergovernmental support for EMBO's activities. EMBO promotes excellence in the life sciences through initiatives such as the election of distinguished researchers to its membership, the awarding of fellowships and grants, and the organization of scientific meetings, workshops, and training courses. In 1974, EMBO played a central role in establishing the European Molecular Biology Laboratory (EMBL), an intergovernmental research institution. Today, EMBO continues to support life scientists at all career stages and advocates for science policy across Europe and beyond.

Administrative history / Biographical sketch

The AIMBN was founded in 1997 with a mission to promote molecular biology and biotechnology in the Asia-Pacific region. The organisation was modelled after EMBO, and EMBO took an advisory role during the AIMBN's early period, in particular in the screening of potential membership candidates. By 2007, they had 300 members in 16 participating 'economies' (so-called due to the political situations in Taipei and Taiwan), and 16 supporting institutes across the region. They held conferences and courses in participating economies.

Scope and content

This collection comprises a single folder containing reports, meeting documents, and correspondence involving the AIMBN. It also contains a photograph from the first AIMBN meeting, featuring then Director of the EMBO, Frank Gannon.
